Alied Council Will Not Grant Germany's Request

PARIS, July 9.—Germany's request that inter-allied military control of her armaments cease on September 30th was denied by the Allied Council of Ambassadors in a note handed to the German Ambassador last evening. It was announced to-day. Satisfaction was expressed, however, that Germany had agreed to them in point demanded by the Council—the resumption of the Control Commission's activities.

Premiers Agree On Joint Note

PARIS, July 9.—A joint note to the Allies, suggesting how the different questions connected with the application of the experts' plan might be settled, was drawn up at a conference yesterday and this morning between Premier MacDonald and Premier Herriot, the British Premier announced to-day.

Socialists Condemn Ku Klux Klan

CLEVELAND, July 9.—The Socialist party late last night officially condemned the Ku Klux Klan by name after the sharpest debate in the National Convention, what has been meeting here for three days. The Convention also passed resolutions denouncing the Fascist movement in Italy and the assassination there of Socialist Deputy Mattei.

U. S. Immigration Officer Fatally Wounded By Shot

BUFFALO, July 9.—Near midnight last night Floyd Ault, United States Immigration Inspector, was fatally wounded on the banks of the Niagara River, presumably by smugglers, or aliens. Ault was patrolling with Inspector Bruce and was surprised by four men armed with shot guns. The officers were disarmed by their captors; one firing at close range a charge of shot into Ault's abdomen. The assailants then fled.

Davis Is Nominated By Democrats In One Hundred and Third Vote

National Independents Also Nominate Candidate.

NEW YORK, July 9.—John W. Davis was elected by the Democratic Convention as the Presidential nominee on the 103rd ballot.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The Democratic National Convention adjourned at 4 a.m. to-day after taking another ballot in a fruitless endeavour to choose a Presidential candidate. The feature of the session came in the early hours of the day, when chairman Welsh read a letter from William G. McAdoo, releasing his supporters from their pledges. In letter he attacked the "wet" and reactionary forces, which, he said, had opposed his nomination. McAdoo's vote fell to 190. Smith stood 351½ and John W. Davis rose to second place with 203½.

TORONTO, July 9.—The Misses Florence and Gertrude Small, sisters of missing Ambrose J. Small, were given permission this morning to excavate a portion of Rosedale Dump in an endeavour to locate the body of the theatrical magnate who disappeared in 1919. The dump was excavated some time ago, but the sisters maintain that digging operations were not carried far enough. The Board's assent was given provided Hon. W. F. ### Polo Association Expect Prince

NEW YORK, July 9.—An invitation to the Prince of Wales to attend the British-American Polo matches on Long Island, in September, was issued nearly a month ago, officials of the United States Polo Association say, and reports concerning the Prince's contemplated visit are accurate. Negotiations looking toward the Prince's visit were handled through the British foreign office, it is said, and Polo men expect an announcement of the acceptance of the invitation to be made on the other side of the Atlantic.

Funeral Service Of Calvin Coolidge, Jr. Was Brief And Simple

WASHINGTON, July 9.—A brief, simple funeral service was held in the East room of the White House late to-day for Calvin Coolidge, Jr. At the conclusion the President and Mrs. Coolidge and other members of the funeral party prepared for the journey to Plymouth, Vermont, where interment will take place.

The Broken Reed

London Daily Chronicle: Before the Labor party took office, we often used to be told on Labor platforms that they would have a sympathetic power of dealing with strike movements, of quickening their solutions and moderating their excesses, such as no other party could wield. Alas! it has not worked out at all in that way. The only difference here between their Government and its Liberal or Conservative predecessors is that it is weaker and less resourceful than they. Not only is it too feeble to safeguard the public interest, when the trouble comes; but its feebleness is so obvious to all beforehand that it invites and provokes trouble.

Men, and More Men

Manitoba Free Press: There is no danger of Canada being swamped by foreign immigration so long as it pursues the intelligent policy of actively encouraging the entry of only those classes which are required and will fit naturally into the economic life of the country. When immigration was at its height before the war the percentage of those about whom any possible apprehension might be felt was quite low and there is no more reason for such feeling at the present time, particularly with the keener and more general realization that now exists of the advisability of recognizing all the new-comers as members of the Canadian family and of encouraging them to feel that that is their position.

San Francisco Entertains British Naval Men

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—The Special Service Squadron of the British Navy, which came through the Golden Gate on Monday rested in San Francisco Bay yesterday, at the only anchorage in continental United States waters to be made during their world cruise, and the personnel of the fleet prepared for three days' whirlwind entertainment. The first item on the programme yesterday was a reception by Mayor James Rolph, to Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field and the senior officers. The next was a luncheon proffered to the British Officers by the Old Country Club, at Fairmont Hotel. In the afternoon a reception was held aboard the flagship Hood, the greatest war

CHAPTER X.

Trying to Forget

The dinner was ordered and begun, and Mr. Glave commenced to amuse and entertain his companion. He had all the gossip of the clubs and drawing-rooms at his finger ends, and he related it in the easiest and most effective manner.

But Bruce was not easy to entertain. He was absent-minded and moody, and now and again Glave found that Bruce was not even listening. Then he went on another tack, and talked turf. Bruce woke up for a time, then grew moody, and abstracted again.

"I shall sell my horses," he said, rather abruptly.

Mr. Glave affected surprise.

"Really? That's a pity, isn't it? You've one or two good things, haven't you?"

Bruce nodded.

"I think so; but I shall sell, all the same."

"Tired of it?"

Bruce was too honest and down-right to accept the pleasant suggestion.

"No, can't afford it," he said laconically.

"Bad time to sell now," said Glave thoughtfully. "I don't know whether you care for a partner, Ravenhurst?"

he eyed Bruce watchfully—"but, if you don't object, I don't mind going halves with you in the stables."

Bruce shook his head.

"Thanks, all the same," he said. "It's very good of you; but—well, the fact is, I can't afford even the half. They'll have to go—"

He paused and filled his glass.

Now, be it understood that Bruce was not a "drunkist." He could take his share at most times, but he always stopped well on the right side of the line; but to-night it must be admitted he had allowed the waiter—and Glave—to fill his glass too frequently.

"The fact is, Glave, I am stone-broke, and I've got to pull up—pull up short."

Mr. Glave pricked up his ears. This did not sound as if Lord Ravenhurst were going to restore the Clansmere fortunes by marrying an heiress. Had anything gone wrong? What had happened?

"I'm awfully sorry," he said; and said no more then, but changed the subject, and ordered another bottle of champagne.

"No more for me," said Bruce; but in the course of conversation, Mr. Glave filled his friend's glass again.

Bruce pushed his glass away presently, the dinner came to a conclusion, and the two men adjourned to the smoking room. It is one of the most comfortable in London—quiet, snug, and cozy; and Bruce leaned back and smoked a huge cigar, and tried to listen to Glave's amusing chat, and to forget Jess. But he could not. His heart was full, and—what was worse—his brain was clouded by the wine.

Mr. Glave watched him.

"Heard about young Grandison?"

he asked.

"No; oh, I suppose you mean that he has gone smash," replied Bruce.

"Poor devil!"

"Not a bit of it," said Glave, with a laugh. "He was up a tree, and a lofty one; but he is all right now. Going to marry old Goldpath's daughter—Goldpath, the millionaire, you know."

Bruce nodded.

"Lucky young beggar!" continued Mr. Glave. "By the bye, Ravenhurst, there was a rumor that you—were going in for the matrimonial stakes," he ventured in a casual way.

Bruce's face darkened, and he smoked furiously.

"Rumor lies!" he said curtly. Then he sighed. "I am not going to marry now," he said, almost to himself.

"I beg your pardon for mentioning it—"

"There's no need," said Bruce, with a sigh. "The fact is—"

No he could not speak of his love and his ruined hopes, least of all in a club smoking room. "No, I shall never marry," he went on, after a pause.

"That's a certain thing."

"What will you do, then? But I hope things are not so bad as you think."

"They couldn't be worse," said Bruce gloomily. "What shall I do? I'll tell you!"

He sat up, with a flush on his face, a resolute look in his eyes. "I'll get into some service abroad."

He lighted another cigar, and reached for the iced brandy and soda which Mr. Glave had considerably ordered—but did not drink—and his hand trembled slightly.

"By George! it's come to me like a flash of lightning! I can't get back into our own service; but I can volunteer for some of the rows that are going on abroad."

Mr. Glave, from the corner of his pale eyes, watched him.

"That's true," he said. "There are several places where a cavalry man would be more than welcome; but I hope it won't come to that, Ravenhurst!"

"Why not?" demanded Bruce sharply. "What's the use of my sticking here? I'm sick of it all! I shall be glad to get out of it. Why didn't I think of it before?"

"Perhaps there wasn't so much reason for your thinking of it?" suggested Mr. Glave.

"No," assented Bruce, with a long breath. "Everything was bright enough a few days ago! But now everything is changed! Never mind that, though. Yes; I'll enter some of the irregular corps out there. Glave, you know everything; help me, will you?"

Glave nodded gravely.

"I'll find out the best thing," he said. "That is, if you are serious."

"I am serious," responded Bruce, almost fiercely.

"And when?" began Glave; but Bruce cut in more quietly:

"At once—as soon as possible."

"And you prefer roughing it with a lot of half-drilled ragamuffins to matrimony?" said Glave softly.

Bruce nodded and looked back at him almost angrily.

"I have told you," he said. "I shall never marry. That's final. Yes. I'll get a berth abroad—somewhere where there's a chance of a scrimmage; and perhaps I shall have the luck—to find a stray bullet," he was going to say; but he checked himself, and looked round with a sigh and that peculiar restlessness which misery and champagne are certain to produce.

Glave rose.

"Let us have some carte," he said, and led the way into the card room.

Later that night—or, rather, early the next morning—Mr. Glave accompanied Lord Ravenhurst to York Lane, saw him safely housed, and then turned homeward. But at the end of the street, in Chelsea, in which his rooms were, he paused, and turned down toward the river. It was a fine night, and the much-maligned but still majestic Thames flowed bravely beneath a clear moon.

Mr. Glave got as far as Westminster Bridge, and stood there leaning against the parapet and looking into the river. His brain was hard at work, and he was going over and over again the few pregnant words Bruce had spoken.

"The match is off, for some reason or other," he murmured to himself. "And he means to go. After all, it's the best thing he can do—the fool!"

He took a few steps, and then leaned over the bridge, again thinking of Bruce, of Deborah, of the Miss Newton—the girl Lord Ravenhurst was after all, not going to marry, and striving to hit upon some way of gratifying his hate.

"As likely as not he'll get shot or die of some fever, and there will be an end of my Lord Ravenhurst," he muttered. "I wish I had the shooting not wisely but too well the night before. He was not only miserable, but reckless and desperate; for that was the way with the Clansmeres; they were too strong to be cast down by adversity, and trouble only roused the spirit of defiance and the desire to forget that trouble in action. If Bruce had been a working man, he would have sat down to his profession and drowned his sorrows with work; as he had nothing in the world to do, he flew at once, and of necessity, so to speak, to what is called pleasure.

There was a race meeting that day, and he went down to it. Some of the fastest of his set were there, and he was welcomed enthusiastically. He appeared to be in the wildest spirits; he bet heavily, he drank freely, he talked and laughed as if he had not a care on his mind and was utterly reckless. Glave was there, and Bruce greeted him cordially.

Glave attached himself to him, made himself remarkably pleasant, and whenever Bruce was inclined to fall into a fit of moodiness roused him and kept him going. Bruce won a little money, and the party returned to town on a four-in-hand, belonging to one of its members, in most hilarious spirits. A day thus begun could only have one ending. Dinner at the club was followed by a visit to the Empire, which, in its turn, was succeeded by cards, continued until an exceedingly late hour.

Bruce played recklessly, and still won. Mr. Glave backed him, and was close at his elbow all the night, and, without seeming to do so, watched him closely—studied him, would, indeed, be the better word. He noted Bruce's way of carrying himself, listened intently to the tones of his voice, repeated inaudibly little phrases and tricks of speech which Bruce was given to; even took a mental note of the color of Bruce's hair, and the way of him! How mad Deborah will be when he gives her the slip!"

He laughed at the thought.

"Anyhow, he will be free of her. He was not such a fool as to marry her—"

He repeated this to himself once or twice; then suddenly the germ of an idea sprang into his mind. It was only a germ, a suggestion, one of those nebulous freaks of the imagination which are born in active brains like Mr. Glave's.

Then, as he mentally caressed the thing, it grew more plausible and probable, and suddenly he stopped, and struck the coping with his hand.

"My God! I'll do it! I'll risk it!"

he muttered; and there was a vivid flush upon his usually pale face. He walked briskly away.

CHAPTER XI.

A Startling Proposal.

Bruce, all unconsciously, began to help Glave in his plot right away. He woke the next morning with a burning head and that sense of misery which a man deserves who has drunk it was parted. If he had been going to paint his picture, he could not have studied him more carefully.

When the evening was finished, and Bruce, hot and flushed, with reckless eyes, and that look which a man wears when he is off his balance, rose to go, Glave remarked casually, that if Bruce were inclined to walk he would go with him.

The two men left the club arm in arm; Ossie, Bruce's own particular friend, would have accompanied them, but Bruce, obfuscated as he was, would not permit it.

"You go home; it's late," he said; and he and Glave went on alone.

On their way, Glave chatted about nothing in particular for some time, then he said, as if he had just remembered it:

"Oh, about that idea of yours last night, Ravenhurst; was it all moonshine, or were you serious?"

Bruce put his hand to his head, and looked at him absently.

"I mean about your obtaining some service abroad."

"Yes, I was serious," replied Bruce; "I told you I meant it. What the devil else is there for me to do? Why do you ask?"

"Oh, because I think I can help you," said Glave. "I've a friend out in Africa who is high up in the border force there. He'd give you a commission sharp enough; in fact, he'd be only too jolly glad to get you. You see, you're rather a distinguished soldier, and cut out for their line of business."

Bruce looked at him eagerly.

"You think he'd have me?" he said. "Is there any chance of fighting?"

"Sure, he'd have you," responded Glave; "and there's certain to be fighting over there presently, if they're not at already; there's always some kind of a scrimmage going on, and you can get plenty of amusement; for I suppose it would be amusement to you. I don't care for fighting myself—don't understand it."

"I'll go if there's a chance of work," said Bruce. "I'm sick of hanging about here; I want something to occupy my mind, and fighting's about the only thing that would suit me. When could you manage it—when could I go?"

Germans Wallow In Luxury

HERR HARDEN'S DISCLOSURES—
RUHR PROPAGANDA ORDERS

LONDON.—What Herr Maximilian Harden has to tell the world about his country in "Germany, France, and England" (just published, Brentano) will explain why the Nationalists have attempted his life. He is one of those Germans who speak the truth, and his book is an extraordinary one, which merits the closest study.

Of the ex-Kaiser he tells this really remarkable story.

William gave for the German students' relief fund (for which English people were pestered with appeals,) 50 gold marks (£2 10s.): a truly imperial present, and a third or half of what one of his portrait postcards, adorned with his "William I.R.," brings him in. These he sells in any quantity desired. Often he goes in person to the dealer and receives his money in his own hand.

As for the bankruptcy of Germany, he states:

Germans fill the alcoves, dens, palaces, zoos, cafes, parlors and bars, and eat of the best.

Jealous Husband Shoots at Sight

MILAN.—A jealous husband named Tullio Miani attempted to kill Signor Robert Pick-Mangioli, the noted violinist and composer, in one of Milan's busiest streets. Miani declared that the violinist was his wife's lover.

The sound of a revolver shot attracted attention to the excited husband, whose wife tried to restrain him from shooting. Two more shots were fired, in spite of her efforts, and a white-faced young man on the opposite pavement was seen to be patting his chest, as if feeling for a wound. One of the bullets was hidden in his coat pocket, another had grazed his hip.

A policeman disarmed Miani. His wife, who stood by him, tall, pretty, and beautifully dressed, accompanied him to the police station.

There Miani complained that his wife was in the power of the young musician. He was her evil spirit, he said.

Miani will be tried for attempted murder.

REGINA, SASK., July 3.—Saskatchewan's population at the end of 1923 was 104,526, according to the annual estimate made by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, just received by Hon. J. M. Uhrich, minister of public health.

At the 1921 census Saskatchewan's population was 757,510.

Commenting on this statement from Ottawa, Stuart Muirhead, in charge of the vital statistics branch of the provincial department of public health, stated the figures indicated that the population of the province had increased very nearly seven per cent. during the past two years.

The figures show that the population of the province by cities is now 104,522; by towns, 65,246; villages, 64,374, which makes a total urban population of 234,282, while the rural population amounted to 576,244. Mr. Muirhead pointed out.

Report of Successful Service United Business College

Efficient Service at the United Business College.

Employers are asking for greater efficiency in education and are willing to pay for it, as is shown by the donations towards the campaign funds mostly for Commercial Education that has not received the support it deserves, and by the increased salaries of stenographers and bookkeepers. No longer need business be hampered by the need of skilled stenographers. If parents will give their children the decided advantage of studying Touch Typewriting, Gregg Shorthand, and Accounting as now offered at the United Business College.

Encouraging Credentials
Many parents and employers have written in praise of the work of this school. Magistrate Parsons, of Hr.

Breton, whose daughter was trained and placed by the College in the office of the Eastern Trust Co., wrote as follows: "Will recommend your School as the best place for a course in Commercial Science. I must thank Dr. Barnes also, who recommended the school to me." Another gentleman, J. J. Lacy, Esq., wrote: "The work of the student you sent us has been carefully done and free from errors of punctuation, paragraphing, spelling and grammar, and is to the writer a marked contrast to similar work done by other stenographers." Recently several other proofs of good work and appreciation have been received as follows:

- (1) From Capt. J. Duffett, Clifton, May 10, 1924.

Dear Mr. Butler:
I feel that I owe it to you to express my very real appreciation of the way in which you helped my son, both as regards your teaching and also by your influence in securing for him the position he has (Stenographer at the Armstrong, Whitworth Co.). To say that I am very deeply grateful is to state a genuine fact, and I hope my boy by his work will be a credit to you and to himself.

I am, yours very sincerely,
(Sgd.) JOHN DUFFETT.

Other Encouraging Credentials

- (2) An ex-student writes "I have read in to-night's 'Telegram' a list of the pupils whom you have placed to work during the past year or so.

You evidently missed my name, and I guarantee to you, Mr. Butler, that I have as good a position as any one of your pupils, (which you got for me, and I appreciate it very much). Why wasn't my name mentioned?"

The Commercial Night School also deserves the credentials it is receiving for its work in Public Speaking, Salesmanship, Writing Sales Letters, including careful complaints letters, selling talk, etc., that sell; collecting letters that collect, etc.; Rapid Calculations, Accounting, Stenography, etc. Professor Burgh of New York University School of Commerce, writing to Mr. Butler, who was one of his students says: "I am glad to hear that you are starting a class in Argumentation and Public Speaking. A speaker who is gifted with your unusual force, magnetism and striking power of expression, could make a very successful teacher of this subject." (Sgd.) L. O. Bergh, LL.D. New York, Univ.

Several old students of the School have sent in testimonials on the benefits derived from a good Commercial Course as now given in both the Day and the Night School. Mr. H. J. Russell, General Manager of the Newfoundland Government Railway, wrote some time ago as follows: "The business methods which I learned at your school are a great help to me in my daily work in the office. Water Street business houses are well represented with leads from your school who occupy responsible positions, and I may say that your school deserves every encouragement."

Mr. A. Calvert, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, writes: "The term at your School gave me what was needed in real business. As for your methods of teaching, the only word that can describe them is 'perfect.' I can, with a clear conscience recommend anyone looking for a good commercial education to you."

Mr. G. R. Williams, managing director of Rothwell & Bowring's of this city, recently wrote as follows: "Out of many students examined for a position in our office, one of yours, Harold Cranford, was best and secured the situation. Congratulations. Well done United Business College."

Business men to-day are seeking trained help and in these strenuous times of business, have not the time at their disposal to train their help as in the days gone by, when competition was not so keen. Thus Business College work is an aid to the cause of commerce and an opportunity of advancement to the student. It is the education that pays best, securing situations for stenographers, book-keepers and salesmen here or anywhere in the business world.

Biblical Scenes Reproduced in British Empire Exhibition

LONDON, June 20 (AP).—The Temple of Solomon, the Tabernacle and many of the other shrines of the Holy Land, familiar to readers of the Old Testament are reproduced in miniature in the Palestine exhibit at the British Empire exhibition. One is shown the holy of holies which the high priest alone could enter, and then but once a year for an annual sacrifice. The palace where Solomon kept his queen and the apartments that sheltered his sumptuous assortment of wives and concubines are faithfully reproduced.

The plain temple which replaced Solomon's magnificent structure after its destruction and also that of Herod, built during the lifetime of Christ up on the same spot, also are reproduced. One is shown the place where Christ was brought as a babe, where He went "about His Father's business" and became lost from His parents as a youth, and also the part of the Temple from which He chased the money-lenders.

Life Insurance Men of Canada and U. S. To Meet at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, July 8 (AP).—Three thousand delegates and visitors from every state in the Union and a number of Canadian cities will gather here July 22 to 28 for the fifth annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Numerous new ideas originated by leaders of the insurance business are expected to be presented at the convention. It is also expected that some new forms of policies may be adopted for general dispensation.

Among the speakers on the opening day will be Dr. S. S. Huebner, of the school of finance and commerce of the University of Pennsylvania. A feature of the convention will be that each day the program will be under the personal direction of some one insurance executive, who will be charged with the success of the session.

Mothers!

Give the children WRIGLEY'S
after every meal

A prominent physician says:

"It is surprising how free from decay the teeth can be kept by using gum after each meal."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S aids digestion too, and acts as an antiseptic wash for the mouth and throat. Several flavors—all of WRIGLEY quality.

The Democratic Choice

After the hardest fought battle in the annals of Presidential nomination conventions, ex-ambassador John W. Davis was yesterday chosen at Madison Square Garden, New York, to lead the Democratic forces to victory or defeat in the coming Presidential election.

It took over one hundred ballotings to break the deadlock between McAdoo and Smith, notwithstanding the fact that it was early apparent neither of these could hope to get the nomination. When the break came, results were not long delayed, and with McAdoo's fast receding votes going for Davis the latter soon ran up the necessary two-thirds majority.

The Democratic Party has not gained strength from the Convention proceedings, but at least there is now no reason to assume that the forces will not be unanimous in backing their nominee. Had either Smith or McAdoo secured the nomination it must have meant that a big section of the old-time Democrats would have voted solidly with the Republicans.

The outcome of the Democratic Convention, therefore, has been a fortunate one from the standpoint of the party.

Opening of the House

The formal opening of the Legislature "for the dispatch of business" took place in the Legislative Council Chamber at 3 o'clock this afternoon with the usual ceremony. His Excellency the Governor, Sir W. L. Allard, delivering the following Speech from the Throne:

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

I welcome you to this the first session of the twenty-sixth General Assembly. The circumstances under which you meet suggest that your deliberations need not be protracted, for my advisers have not been in office long enough to permit of that close investigation into public affairs which should precede legislation.

Since the last General Assembly was prorogued, three administrations have been appointed and two have resigned, and a General Election has resulted in a large majority for my present advisers. Of my Ministers who sought re-election all except two were returned by acclamation, and the two who were opposed, obtained largely increased majorities. Many electors being absent at this season, at the fishery and elsewhere, from Bonavista District, the two members who sit for the Constituency will seek re-election at a later date this year.

The Seal Fishery this Spring was a successful one, and the Cod Fishery has commenced hopefully with prospects of satisfactory markets. Unemployment has decreased, and upon the whole, a new spirit of encouragement is manifested by the people of this Colony.

Field Marshal Earl Haig has recently honoured the Colony by his presence under the auspices of the Great War Veterans' Association, to unveil a beautiful National Memorial to the Colony's loyal sons who fell in the Great War, and the manner in which the occasion was marked, and the success which attended the efforts of those responsible will never be forgotten. The Field Marshal was accompanied by Lady Haig, and warships of Great Britain, France and the United States of America were present in the Port of St. John's, and officers and crews took part in the ceremony.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

Estimates were provided by the preceding Government for the consideration of the last General Assembly. My present advisers have not had sufficient time for a complete consideration of those estimates. They have amended them in some particulars, only in the direction of greater economy and propose to submit them as amended, with a promise that such further economies shall be made as investigation may prove feasible.

The Enquiry by Auditors into the affairs of several Public Departments instituted by a recent Government, has been steadily pursued, but has not yet reached a stage which would justify an Enquiry on Oath. When such a stage has been reached, a Commissioner to hold the Enquiry will be obtained from England. In the meantime, investigations on even a wider scale than was proposed will be commenced.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

It is publicly recognized that the Prohibition Act has not been enforced, and that unlawful practices with reference to the importation, manufacture and sale of liquor, have become general. A measure designed towards more adequate control, and to decrease the many evils which result from law breaking, will be submitted to you.

The excessive cost of public printing and stationery have induced my Ministers to prepare for your consideration, a Bill designed to place the matter under the control of the Colonial Secretary, with a special official in charge as King's Printer. The work of printing, and the supply of stationery it is proposed to submit to tender and contract.

Contracts concerning an enterprise on the Gander River, and a Flour Mill at St. John's, are being reconsidered by my present advisers, and if and when satisfactory to them, will be submitted for your consideration.

My Ministers are giving earnest attention to plans for the development of natural resources to give greater employment, and stimulate the trade of the Colony, and when these have been completed, your approval will be asked.

I commend your deliberations to the guidance of the Almighty, for the promotion of the best interests of the people.

Playground Picnic

Over two hundred boys and girls from the Bannerman and Victoria Park playgrounds went into the country yesterday on an all-day picnic. Although the morning was cold and the weather disconcerting, the motley group started off under the leadership of Mr. Barton, Miss Margaret Murphy and Mrs. Davis of the regular playground force, and Miss Elsie Creech of the University of Toronto, a volunteer worker. The sun just couldn't refuse to shine on so many beaming faces. The clouds drifted away, and with good weather good lunches and good games, such a good time was had by the boys and girls that they are planning a similar outing for next Wednesday.

NOTICE

Boys and girls do not forget the exhibit of pets at the Bannerman Park Playground from 3 to 5 p.m. on Friday afternoon, July 11th. Today is the day to register your name for that event with Mr. Barton at Bannerman Park, or with Mrs. Davis at Victoria Park.

Latest

BUENOS AIRES, July 10.—San Paulo rebels were still holding their positions in Luz barracks this morning, according to advices from Rio de Janeiro, quoting official account. The account added the assertion that the rebels would be unable to hold out much longer owing to desertions and exhaustion, and the fact that they are surrounded and without possibility of receiving reinforcements.

OTTAWA, July 9.—A bill to amend Fisheries Act, 1914, was given its third reading in house last night. It reduces license fees on canneries in British Columbia, following recommendations made by the Duff Commission. First and second readings were given to Bill to regulate the manufacture of by-products of fish canneries and to impose tax of 25 cents a ton on dry salted herring in British Columbia.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., July 9.—A silver discovery just announced by George Harris and R. J. Closs, Fort William, is said by discoverers to be one of most sensational finds of the year in mineral claims. The find is about 100 miles northeast of Fort William.

NEW YORK, July 10.—John W. Davis, West Virginia, and Governor Charles W. Bryan, Nebraska, the Democratic party's candidates for President and Vice President, Emerging on 103rd ballot as the Democratic National Convention's choice for Presidential nomination, the West Virginia lawyer and diplomat swept away the great waves of bitterness churned up during 15 preceding days of the stormy conflict. Then, taking command immediately, the new head of the party guided the convention swiftly towards selection of a running mate, the brother of William Jennings Bryan, his most vigorous opponent throughout the balloting. When the convention adjourned at 2.24 a.m. to-day it had filled many new pages in political history, rising in dramatic force from a violent struggle of twelve days ago over naming of Ku Klux Klan in the party platform, to a record breaking deadlock between McAdoo and Smith supporters.

Magazines and Newspapers

New York Herald-Tribune: It is a plain fact that the writer who has something to say, whether in the field of controversy or of straight reporting, and wishes to reach his audience while his ideas are hot, in dignified fashion and without thought of meretricious decoration or so-called entertainment, can do so better through most of the magazines. It would be a quaint idea but by no means improbable transposition if young men wishing to enter journalism, instead of trying to get jobs as cub reporters, should take their bounciness and juvenile thought directly from their undergraduate papers to the sub-editorial desks of the magazines, and later should advance to the better writing, more serious and generally more mature field of the daily newspaper.

After Many Years

Victoria Colonist: Many of us recall the scene, a little less than twenty years ago, when, on a misty September morning, the last of the Imperial Naval ratings left Victoria for England. Canada had decided to take over her own defences; and ship by ship, and company by company, the Navy was returning home. Long before the men in blue came in sight we watched for them through the fog, and we could hear the shrill of the fifes and the tapping of the little drums, and the hushed tramp of marching feet. Many there were who wept to see them go. Yesterday they returned, and in them we have a reminder of our duty and our destiny. Without the Fleet, Canada had been lost to us long ago. Without the Fleet, she must be lost to us eventually.

The British Legion

London Daily News: The continued vitality of the British Legion has been exemplified at its third annual conference in London. This great brotherhood of ex-service men deserves well of the nation. It is composed of hundreds of thousands of men who took the hardest part of all in the tremendous conflict to which, in some form or other, practically the whole nation devoted its energies; and a large number of these men have emerged from the fight broken in body, mind and spirit, and with no prospect whatever of earning a livelihood sufficient to keep themselves and their families in decent comfort. Well-organized and well-led, the Legion has done more than any other body to provide encouragement and assistance for the more unfortunate among its members, and to keep before the public its obligations to those whose claims it would be convenient but dishonorable to forget.

Concealed Weapons

Manchester Guardian: The probable state of Germany's military forces does not, in itself, present much cause for alarm. That they are not entirely reduced within the narrow limits of the treaty is likely enough. But effectively they have been reduced to comparative impotence. Nevertheless it is the treaty right of the Allies, and on which they will unanimously insist to satisfy themselves exactly how things stand today. There exists in France and also in our own country much suspicion about the state of Germany's arms. Germany has to shape her diplomacy from the realities of Allied temper, and she will not do this unless she admits to herself that her present disarmament plea is very unlikely to be found acceptable. If she sticks to it she will confirm the suspicions of those who distrust her that she has something to conceal, and she will destroy some of the goodwill that has arisen lately in France.

Hiram walked four miles over the hills to call on the girl of his dreams. For a long time they sat silent on a bench by the side of her log-cabin home; but soon the moon had its effect, and Hiram slid closer to her and picked up her hand.

"Mary," he began, "I've got a good clearin' over thar an' a team an' wagon an' some hawses an' cows, an' I cal'late on buildin' a house an'—"

Here he was interrupted by Mary's mother, who had awakened.

"Mary!" she called in a loud voice. "Is that young man thar yet?"

Back came the answer: "No, ma, but he's gittin' thar."

Motor Boat Breaks Adrift

Const. Crocker has phoned the following message to the Advocate:

"Hogan's motor boat, with engine from Red Head Cove, broke from mooring last night and drove off. Boat green painted, with black bottom. Please make enquiries."

Esprit de Corps

London Times: The toll of the parade ground, to the uninitiated so apparently meaningless, has its justification, and much more than its justification, in the spirit of the regiment. The monotony of repetitive labor may become, after the same fashion, no more than a means to an end—and that end, too, a spiritual one. Less and less does the nature of a man's work signify; more and more significance attaches to the power he possesses of finding the reward of his efforts in the common good. Thus loyalty to a firm or an institution is no "service of slaves," but the spirit of citizenship in daily life. There is, indeed, "a right to loyalty," which every worker is entitled to formulate. Those who fail, whether wilfully or not, to obtain this right forfeit of necessity the chief reward of their toil and so become in truth slaves condemned, like their machines, to "ignorant repetition."

Government Railway Ownership in France

Railway Age: There are seven large railways in France, six of which are owned and operated by private companies and one of which—the State Railway—is owned and operated by the French Government. In the year 1923 each of the six private systems made earnings exceeding expenses, and their net operating income aggregated 732 million francs. On the other hand, the State Railway's operating expenses were 113 per cent. of—or 13 per cent. greater than—its total earnings, and its deficit, which the taxpayers must pay, amounted to about one hundred and forty-five million francs. The private railways continued to reduce their operating expenses as they have been doing ever since the war, and, therefore, increased their net earnings. The State Railway hardly reduced its operating expenses at all the ratio of its expenses to its earnings in 1922 having been 114 per cent. and in 1923, as already stated, 113 per cent.

Shopgirls Wine Legitimacy Case

Judge Finds She is Lawful Child of Earl's Nephew

EDINBURGH, June 16 (Canadian Press)—The final act in the legitimacy suit, in which an Aberdeen shop girl, Constance Mary Lyon, sought to establish her claim as the eldest lawful child of Herbert Bowes-Lyon, nephew of the Earl of Strathmore, occurred in an Edinburgh court yesterday when Lord Morison delivered a considered judgment in favor of her petition. He said that plaintiff's parents marriage was clearly proved and the only question was whether plaintiff was their daughter. In his lordship's opinion the answer was in the affirmative.

It was not unusual, said the judgment, that the defendant and his wife were anxious to conceal the birth of their daughter from their parents.

The evidence indicated that the marriage took place subsequent to the birth of the child. Mrs. Lyon appeared to have registered her daughter's birth as legitimate, as she was entitled to do, the parents' domicile being Scottish. The evidence in the case established the identity of the plaintiff as the daughter of the defendant and his wife.

Rules for Use of Hay Box

1—Use saucepans with tightly fitting lids. Those made of aluminium or granite ware are best.

2—Bring food to boiling point over gas, oil or fire and while at that temperature place it at once in the Hay Box.

3—Cover quickly with the hay cushions and close the lid firmly. There must be no space between the cushion and the lid. If the saucepan is not packed very quickly there will be loss of heat.

4—Utensils should be as full as possible in order to retain the heat well.

5—Certain foods such as stews will require bringing to boiling point after removal from Hay Box.

Average Time for Various Foods
Boiled Meat—Simmer 1/2 to 3/4 hour on fire. Cook in Hay Box from 5 to 6 hours.

Stew—Simmer 1/2 an hour and allow 4 or 5 hours in cooker.

Dried Peas and Beans—Soak overnight. Boil about 3/4 hour and allow 3 or 4 hours in the Box.

Fresh Fruit—Bring to boiling point and place in Box at once. Allow about 2 hours according to firmness of fruit.

Dried Fruit—Soak overnight. Boil for four minutes. Put in Box for 3 or 4 hours.

Oatmeal—Boil (while stirring) from 5 to 10 minutes and leave in Box all night.

Rolls Oats—Boil for 5 minutes and leave in Box 2 hours (or all night).

Recipes
Oatmeal Porridge—4 cups water, 1 cup oatmeal (or rolled oats) teaspoonful salt. Shake oatmeal or rolled oats into rapidly boiling water, stirring constantly for 10 minutes. Put into cooker for 45 minutes or an hour. Raisins, sugar, milk may be added on removing from cooker.

Dried Beans, Peas and Lentils make excellent and nourishing soup without meat, since they require long continued cooking, they are well adapted to fireless cooker methods. These dried vegetables cooked with little water, and no meat, rubbed through a sieve and made into the proper consistency with milk, a piece of butter the size of a walnut and seasoning would make an excellent meal for children.

Women on the Board.

In the newly-issued Directory of Directors 178 women figure as directors of public companies, which is thirty-three more than in 1923.

It may be expected that their energies would be chiefly directed to dappery or catering companies, but they are to be found equally on the boards of engineering and shipping concerns, breweries, collieries, mines, tea and rubber companies.

It is noteworthy that 75 per cent. of the woman directors are married, and in some cases they represent family interests.

To-night's Boxing Tournament

All arrangements are now complete for the big boxing tournament which will take place in the Prince's Rink to-night, and from present indications the best bouts in years, will be witnessed. The boxers of H. M. S. Constance, now in port, which include two champions of the North Atlantic Squadron were anxious to meet some of our local boxers, and a tournament was arranged in connection with the Haig week celebrations, which proved very successful. Following on this a challenge was issued by Mr. E. Butler to A. B. Davis, who defeated Ken Goodyear, and the acceptance of this brought about several other contests. Our local boxers have not been in training, but were willing to meet the men from the ship and have spent the last five days endeavouring to get in good trim for the bout, so that they are now in very good condition and can be counted on to give a good account of themselves.

The big feature of the evening is the challenge bout between Messrs. Butler and Davis, both veterans of the Great War. This will be an eight round contest.

Fred Marshall, so well known to all sports, is meeting Vandersteen of the Constance, who defeated Phalen last week. Vandersteen is the Lightweight champion of the North Atlantic Squadron. This will be a six round bout.

Diamond, who fought so well last week, is again facing off with A. B. Dabbs, of the Constance. Other bouts will be Chancey, City, vs. Hawken, Constance; and Jones, city, vs. Bunt wireless station.

The seating arrangement is now complete and each seat is numbered, whilst ushers will be in attendance to bring each ticket holder to his place; in this manner holders of reserved seat tickets are assured of their places.

Hail Storm Breaks Glass In Many Houses

The following message was received yesterday by Mr. Clyde Lake, M.H.A., from Mr. L. R. Riggs of Flat Islands, P.B.: "Hail storms played havoc with the houses here yesterday, smashing the felt and glass on fifty or more houses and stores. None of the people are in a position to replace their damages. It is impossible for me to supply their requirements. Will need 150 rolls of 2 ply felt, tins nails, 5 boxes 6 x 10 glass, 4 boxes 12 x 20. Will probably want more than this. Will try and get exact requirements as soon as possible. Assistance from the Government is urgently requested. Please reply."

Mr. Lake, after interviewing the Prime Minister, replied that the Government refused to give any assistance and got a second message as follows:

"Conditions are serious here. It needs thousands of panes of glass and 300 rolls of felt to replace the damages. Water is running down, spoiling the beds and furniture. Fish is being spoiled in stores with water. People cannot help themselves."

Efforts were then made by Messrs. Lake and Long to raise a fund by public subscription and some sixty dollars was collected.

Members of House Are Sworn In

MR. C. J. FOX, M.H.A., ELECTED SPEAKER

At two o'clock yesterday afternoon the Members elected to serve in the Twenty-Sixth General Assembly were sworn in by Hons. J. D. Ryan, S. Milley and A. B. Morine, Commissioners appointed for that purpose. At three o'clock the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod summoned the Members to the Legislative Council Chamber where they were directed to elect from amongst their number one as Speaker. The duty was at once undertaken, and on motion of the Prime Minister, seconded by the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. C. J. Fox, Member for St. John's East, was unanimously elected. The House then adjourned until this afternoon at 2.45 o'clock.

Lives Growing Longer

People are living much longer. This is the result of less drinking, wiser eating, and healthier cities.

The fact is, proved by the experience of the Government in connection with life annuities. These are annual payments for life obtainable at any post-office by paying down lump sums. The sum paid to obtain $100 a year for life varies, of course, with the expectation of life.

The Government finds that people are living so much longer that they had to put up the price of annuities. Whereas £100 used to buy for a man of sixty a payment of £9.12s.7d. a year for the rest of his life, in future it will only buy him an annuity of £8.19s.2d.

It has been found that in the twenty years from 1900 to 1920, the number of mail annuitants who died was only 88 out of each 100 expected to die, and in the case of women only 81 out of each 100.

Bad for the Government, but good for the nation! May the improvement continue!

Strikes and Public Servants

Detroit News: Nothing can justify a walk-out of public servants in a country where the people rule. For to conspire to declare a strike against the Government is to declare war, and if one body of public servants declare war on the Government, then so can any other body, even to the army, and anybody can see what that would mean. The Canadian postal employees should have continued their campaign of educating the public, rather than resorting to force and penalizing the people who must supply the funds, and whose good-will is therefore essential. They may be sure of justice when the people understand.

Europeans In China

Hong Kong Press: There is, no doubt, a growing spirit of revolt against the foreigner which will need firm handling by the Legations. It is significant, for instance, to read that two hundred and eighty members of the Chinese Parliament are said to have endorsed the decision to send a cable to the British Government the keynote of which, according to a Chinese paper, is this: "Great Britain can bar the Chinese from landing in Australia and Canada, but not from the City Wall in Peking." What these childish intellects seemingly fail to understand is that these regulations which debar Chinese soldiers from being on the City Wall within the Legation Quarter are not the regulations of the British Legation, but those of the entire Diplomatic Corps.

Sticking To It

Quebec Chronicle: It is illuminating to notice that despite the $60,000,000 which is paid every year to the United States, despite financial stringency and industrial unrest, a housing scheme is going forward which will involve governmental expenditure of $125,000,000. The scheme provides for the erection of 250,000 houses within a period of ten years and it is estimated that these houses will provide homes for ten million people. This example of determined effort towards reconstruction is only comparable with the effort which has been made to safeguard credit abroad. A country that girds itself for the task of building homes for ten million people and at the same time makes arrangements to pay off huge liabilities gives astounding proof of its vitality.

Tempora Mutantur

Indianapolis News: Many of the former candidates (for the Presidency) were governed by a sense that forbade them to participate in such antics as are now amusing the crowd in New York. But what are the prophecies of one generation seem foolish to another, and it is so now. The old prophecies are not, as Professor Summer would say in the "Mores" of our time—more is the pity. Doubtless there was as much manoeuvring and bargaining in the convention that nominated Lincoln as there is now. But the candidates were kept out of it—or kept themselves out of it—as far as possible. It was not a question of what was befitting in the candidates, but rather a feeling that the presidency was too high—perhaps too sacred—an office to be scrambled for by those who aspired for it. It is not so much that there has been a change in the feeling as to what is proper, but rather a new feeling that there is no such thing as propriety, or a sense of it.

Motor Driver Sent To Penitentiary

Yesterday in the Magistrates' Court before Judge Morris, a motor driver on conviction, was sentenced to the Penitentiary for ten days imprisonment, without the option of a fine. The evidences showed he was driving at a speed of twenty-five miles an hour along LeMarchant Road on Sunday evening last. The Judge said that during the season he had been giving warning to joy-riders and careless drivers that upon conviction he would not give them the option of a fine and he felt certain the sentence in this case would have a deterrent effect.

"Walter, you remember I came in yesterday for a steak?"

Enjoyable Outing

A very enjoyable outing was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of Wesley Church Choir. Those participating left by motor buses at 2.30 p.m. and proceeded to Octagon pond. At 6 o'clock tea was served by the ladies of the choir. Amusements and games were indulged in until 10 o'clock, when the party returned to town. The party also included Rev. J. G. Joyce and several members of the official Boards of the Church and their wives.

Ten-Mile Skyrocket

An American scientist, Dr. Robert H. Goddard, who four years ago announced his scheme to fire a rocket to the moon, 239,000 miles away, will make a preliminary test this summer with a rocket that may ascend ten miles.
"The contrivance will be about five feet high and six inches in diameter," said Dr. Goddard. "It will be loaded with a series of explosive charges which will be ignited at predetermined intervals in the flight of the projectile, each giving a powerful 'kick' to accelerate the rushing motion through the air."
"On the success of the experimental projectile may depend my effort to reach the moon."

St. Michael's Garden Party

St. Michael's Garden Party was held yesterday afternoon in Lester's Field under conditions that were delightful. The weather was all that could be desired, and large crowds thronged the spacious field, which was decorated with bunting for the occasion. The various tentholders did a thriving business selling refreshments, whilst the many sideshows were largely patronized. The C. L. B. Band was present and rendered a very artistic programme of music which was greatly enjoyed by the large gathering. Amongst the numerous attractions were two clowns impersonated by two sailors from H. M. S. Constance, who provided a great deal of amusement.

The following events were run off: Football Fives, Cavalry Tournament, One Mile Race, Pyramid Exhibition, Football Fives, Exhibition of Blindfold Boxing.

In the first event a good brand of football was given the spectators. The teams were the Rovers vs. H.M.S. Constance. The conclusion of the game saw a win for the Rovers, 2 to 0.

The Cavalry Tournament was won by L. Hookey and F. Penney.

Three local runners lined up for the mile race, Stone, Ralph and Grouchy. Stone held the lead right through, closely followed by Ralph. Grouchy dropped out of the race at the seventh round and Stone entered the tape first, with Ralph second. The Pyramid exhibition by the C. L. B. was very gracefully executed and reflects great credit on the instructors.

The second football fives was between the C. L. B. and H. M. S. Constance and resulted in a win for the former. Score 2 to 1.

Much amusement was caused by the blindfold boxing exhibition and this was a very popular item.

Delicious afternoon teas were served by the Ladies' Committee, whose efforts to help make the Garden Party a success do not go unappreciated. The prizes were presented to the winners of the various events by Rev. Mr. Nichol.

No doubt there will be a large attendance of parishioners and friends. Refreshments will be served by the ladies of St. Thomas's Women's Association and St. Margaret's Guild.
